

Meet The Team

Each month, we will be introducing a member of the Interfuture team and discovering what their super power is and how they can help you.

The computer engineer, once common throughout the UK has, in recent years, become harder to find. A shy and elusive employee, which is often nocturnal, can occasionally be seen tentatively emerging from their natural tech environment, to seek out food and water. Watch this space for further sightings.

MFA fatigue

This is a very real and present danger that is gaining traction. Multi-factor authentication fatigue is a technique used by attackers to flood a user's authentication app with push notifications, in the hope that the target will eventually tire and accept, enabling the attacker to gain entry to an account or device.

People may accept the access attempt in frustration, simply so that they can get on with what they were doing. A target may also receive a message or email from the attacker posing as someone from a helpdesk, or IT dept., encouraging them to accept the access attempt.

If you find yourself in this situation, please call us immediately.

Free Lunch?

Yes, there is such a thing as a free lunch. We're excited to offer you the opportunity to enjoy a lunch out, on us, for you and a friend/lover (if you have neither, I'm available ... for the lunch only!). See below for more details.

This month we are also pleased to start a new feature: "Meet The Team".

Finally, we would like to draw your attention to the important issue of user authentication and how this affects you.

BA vs MA

On the authentication theme: as of 31/10/22, Microsoft is moving over from Basic Authentication (BA) to Modern Authentication (MA) - a more secure form of sign in. This will change from looking like this, to that:

The reason for the change is that MA is more secure, plus it supports multi factor authentication, which BA did not.

If users have any sign-in issues, they may need to update their applications. Or easier still - contact us and we will sort it out for you 😊

What's Happening in November

There are far too many (notable) national and international days to fit in here, so forgive me if you're Scottish and I don't mention St. Andrews Day ... it's on Wednesday 30th, by the way.

We get off to a flying start on 1st with World Vegan Day, 2nd is National Stress Awareness Day and a favourite is Roast Dinner Day on 3rd. Obviously, we have Guy Fawkes Night on 5th (some little misunderstanding in 1605). The 7th is National Hug A Bear Day (neither wise, or possible, in this country, I would have thought). Finally, we must remember Armistice Day on 11th and Remembrance Sunday on 13th. Oh and don't forget Stir Up Sunday on 20th - it's too early to mention what that relates to
